A MUNICIPAL BUILDING. ing adapted to its present necessities and The Courant favors a plan of grouped buildings rather than a big joint departmental structure; and in this it is certainly moving along cor-rect lines. This is what The Courant has to say upon this particular point: "In the first place, we beg to call attention to the fact-obvious when the subject is studied-that a single unicipal building in its very nature undesirable. It must be started too it, it would be outgrown by the grow-ing city. Norwich has a city, town and county building which it has outgrown and which it has just enlarged to meet the public necessities. It is an ornament to the place and a credit to the original designers; but the gas and electric department is out in the cold and two years old. He has doubtless been most of the city departments are still growing worse all the time, and was most of the city departments are still crowded. The Courant's idea of a group of buildings is a good one, for it combines with the separativeness of de-partments a stateliness of design becoming the first city of the state.

It is to be hoped that Hartford will not blunder in an enterprise of such importance from every point of view.

THE CONFERENCE OF GOVERN- what he would do. ORS.

The meeting of the conference of governors in Washington calls atten-tion to a new force in governmental ection which ought to bring about de-sirable results. It is a worthy experiment set on foot by President Rooseveit, and there is reason for hope that may prove to be of advantage to the frost in his whiskers. the entire country, as a fosterer of state co-operation and the unideation of laws, which cannot be so readily accomplished in any other way.

It is proposed that the governors shall meet at regular intervals as a body of peers, working out by united einte action those problems where

United States action has for more than a century proved powerless. The plan for a house of governors begins with the assumption that there are many questions upon which the are many questions upon which the Bringing a whole river of mountain federal government cannot act, and that the only way out of the difficulty la to obtain uniform state legislation.

PROFITS-TARIFF OR NO TARIFF There is no dodging the fact that low tariff or no tariff does not control the price of goods in the market. The notice of the National Boot and Shoe Manufacturers' association that prices on all grades of shoes shall be advanced 10 per cent, while hides are free of duty and the tariff rate on finished leather was reduced 33 1-3 per cent., shows this. Looking the field over, the Toledo Blade calls attention to the fact that "the lower duties upon pulp paper caused Canada to start putting an export tax into effect which counteracts any possibly saving to consumers of paper and robs the government of just so much revenue. The fruit growers of California obtained an increase in the tariff on lemons and the railroads immediately raised rates so as to absorb the profit. And here the shoe manufacturers, after pleading for lower duties on raw material, in order that the poor public might not have to pay more for footgear, blandly raise the prices. They also defy the competition with Europe made possible by lower custom rates.

"The figuring of economists is never more awry," says The Blade, "than in dealing with the tariff question. Low duties do not necessarily mean low prices to consumers and an open door is all that waste to consider. How-ever big we might let ourselves build it, it would be outgrown here. creases in their wares. The principal

THE DIARY OF A LUNATIC.

It is rarely the habit of a lunatic to keep a diary, but Franz Joseph Shubert, who is suspected of shooting, wounding and killing boy coasters in it with elevators, heating, janitor wounding and killing boy coasters in work and all the rest would mean a New York, had the habit, and his daily great permanent drain on the treasury jottings leave no doubt of the vacancy of his mind or of his irresponsbility is to obtain uniform state legislation. Not only is it expected that uniform legislation by the states will be promoted, but that state rights will be strengthened and conserved, and centralization of power in the hands of the federal government lessened. It will take a few years to find out whether this scheme has in it the merit which its organizers thought they foresaw. It puts up a good front and if the interests of all are kept first it is difficult to see how it can possibly fall.

Imitation Welsh Rarebit—American cheese is used for this, the dry sort usually called "poor" by old-fashioned cooks. Break the cheese in little bits and when the dish is hot drop it in and let it melt slowly. Add a sprinkle of dry mustard and cayenne when the cheese is cooking and leave over the blaze for some minutes afterward. Serve on toasted water biscuits.

Scalloped Oysters—Dip a fork or a nut pick into the liquor and after a little shake of the oyster remove each one from the juice. This clears the bivalve of the sediment always in the liquor and which interferes with the delicacy of the taste. Then drain the oysters and put them in a piping hot dish with a lump of butter. When the edges are curled slightly, which will be in a very few minutes, the cysters are done. Serve them on slices of hot buttered toast—white or gluten breadwith a sprinkle of chopped parsley on top. was interested to come upon an entry about the vest worn by the king. As far as is known, this vest, of which the careful chronicler tells, under date of October 15, 1666, is the forerunner of the waistcoast of today. No less a personage than Charles II, is responsible for the custom of wearing a vest. The garment, as described by Pepys, is 'a long cassocke close to the body, of black cloth, and pinked with white silk under it, and a coat over it.' Further on Pepys expresses the desire that the fashion set by the king may obtain."

Mushrooms Sauteed—This exquisite feast may be made of either canned or fresh mushrooms, though the latter are better. The wild puff balls that seem the deformed sisters of mushrooms may also be used. Leave the little umbrellas in cold water for an hour. Then peel them and discard the stems, wipe dry and put over the fire in the cold dish, closely covered, and leave the cover on during all the cooking, which would be about twenty minutes. Mushrooms so cooked may be eaten with bread and butter or else served as a garnish to any other dish. served as a garnish to any other dish. They must be lightly salted when put on and not peppered at all.

Lobster a la Newburg—What amsteur cook has not attempted this sophisticated dish in her studio or boarding house bedroom? It is the resource of all you persons who must entertain some time, and though easy enough to make, it gives a fine impression of great knowledge in cookery.

Cut the meat of a boiled lobster into two-inch bits or else get the best quality to be had in can and drain off all the liquid. Rub the yolks of two hard boiled eggs to a smooth paste with a tablespoonful of cream. Cook together in the dish over the alcohol flame two tablespoonfuls of flour, with a slack one of butter, stir into this the yolk and cream paste and add slowly a cupful of cream sweetned with a your and cream paste and add slowly a cupful of cream sweetened with a pinch of soda. When this mixture reaches the boiling point put in the lobster meat, a little sait, cayenne pepper and ground mace. Stir all together two or three minutes—long enough for the lobster to heat through.

BEAD BAGS.

The woman who covets a bead bag this season (and they are very fashion-able) will do well to learn the crochet stitch, buy some beads and make the bag at home. There is a style that shows a cabochon in the very center shows a cabochon in the very center of the bag. And when this huge stone is indicative of one's birth month there is more sentiment to the little trinket than one might imagine. Bead work is comparatively easy to learn, so no one need despair of owning a pretty opera bag. A home-made bag does not necessarily call for mountings, provided drawstrings are not objectionable.

All-over laces, that have hereto-fore been used principally for yokes or whole waists, are enjoying some distinction at present as panel figures on cloth. The two widths are placed from the shoulder line and fall straight down. With a few gathers and rais, the lace falls in line with the one-piece dress. The extreme edges may be trimmed with pendant trimmings, or merely flat bows of velvet ribbon.

Contribute to Spread of Disease

At a meeting in Washington, attended by leading educators and representatives of workingmen, the sentiment was unanimous that the had air, poor light and orowded rooms in many schools and factories contributed largely to the spread of consumption. Samuel Gompers, as President of the American Federation of Labor, maintained that by causing a reduction in the hours of labor, and securing higher wages, which made it possible to provide better sustenance, the Federation had done much to assist in the great work of stamping out the disease.

While much has been accomplished in the fight against consumption, it is necessary for each individual to take every precaution against confracting the disease. Coughs and colds are a prolific source, and must not be neglected. A simple, inexpensive and effective remedy is made by mixing two ounces of Glycerine, a half ounce of Virgin Oil of Pine compound pure and eight ounces of pure Whiskey. A tenspoonful, four times a day, will usually break up a cold in twenty-four hours and cure any cough that is curable.
